Dear Beau Photo Customers,

Due to the growing concern of COVID-19 and in the interest of everyone's health and safety, we have made the difficult decision to temporarily close our store as of March 20th, 2020. Please check our website and social media for updated information.

<https://www.beauphoto.com/covid-19-statement-our-policies/>

However, this does not mean that we are gone completely. We will be posting on social media as well as our blog to keep ourselves and our customers entertained with photos, tips, tricks, opinions, and reviews. Please follow along, reach out, and share with us your experiences during this unusual time.

We are still here for you. If you are in desperate need of equipment or rentals, please do not hesitate to contact us via email or social media as we have staff available to meet at the store and get you what you need.

We apologize for any inconveniences this may cause but the safety of our customers and our staff is our number one concern.

Please stay safe and healthy.

Backorders, Delays and Price Increases

With COVID-19 wreaking havoc on supply chains worldwide, there are many products, both upcoming and current, that are going to be very hard to come by. In addition, the CDN dollar is plummeting in value against the US dollar and many US goods we import will therefore be seeing some hefty price increases. The CDN dollar has fallen by more than 10% in the last month, which directly affects selling prices of Hasselblad, iOptron, Plustek and other items we import directly from the US. In addition, we have received word from other Canadian distributors that the worsening exchange rate will be affecting their pricing as well.

A few examples of hard to come by items include Fujifilm's new X100V, likely delays on their upcoming X-T4, difficulty in getting many items from Canon, delays on Nikon's Z 70-200mm f/2.8 and more. As soon as we return to business, we will be sending out updates on the status of these items, and more information on any price adjustments that need to be made.

REBATES and SALE Pricing!

Most manufacturer's rebates are next to nonexistent for April, with the exception being Nikon as follows...

Nikon D5 Body - $7,799 (SAVE $700)

Nikon D850 Body - $3,899 (SAVE $100)

Nikon D850 bundle w/24-120mm - $4,999 (SAVE $100)

Nikon Z7 Body - $3,899 (SAVE $100)

Nikon Z7 Kit w/24-70mm - $4,699 (SAVE $100)

FTZ Adapter is $200 with any Z6 or Z7 body or kit.
(SAVE $129)

We do have some sale/clearance pricing on numerous items, including one last Datacolor item and a whole bunch of battery grips and hand-grips!

Datacolor Spyder 5 Studio
$379 (SAVE $300)

Fujifilm X100V

In this era of required physical distancing, one thing you can do to occupy your time is go out and take some photos in locations where it is easy to keep away from other people. I recently did so by taking my new Fujifilm X100V out and wandering around UBC as well as Campbell Valley Park. The UBC campus was relatively empty and it was easy to avoid getting close to strangers, plus UBC has some fascinating buildings to shoot, including the Museum of Anthropology and surrounding native long-house and totems, Cecil Green House and the Pharmaceutical Sciences building, all of which are in my linked gallery. During this time of year, evening light can bring lots of interesting light reflections and shadows too!

Out at Campbell Valley Park, while the trees and bushes were still mostly bare, there were lots of opportunities to photograph backlit moss in the evening light, as well as some macro shots. There weren't many people on the trails and those that were gave each other a wide berth.

Here is a link to my personal blog post which then links to a gallery of 55 images shot with the X100V...

Mola Softlights

Often photographers are searching for a look to set them apart. Trends come and go but great lighting is something better photographers always strive for. Mola softlights are designed for beautiful lighting. We had been selling Mola softlights for many years, but lately have not had access to them. Through distribution changes, we now can order them in for you again!

What makes Mola Softlights different from other modifiers? Often referred to as a Mola Dish, Mola's unique patented designs allow you to get more work out of less light. Designed by a photographer for photographers, the Mola reflectors captures and focuses light with maximum efficiency. It is shaped to intercept all paths of light, no matter which direction they leave the flash tube, and redirect them toward the subject. This is a big improvement on most square box shaped modifiers, which can only focus a portion of the light available.

While the Mola softlights will be a special order for the time being, we do have the Mola Demi and Mola Setti in rentals for you to try out. We will take up to 2 days rentals off the purchase price.

For more info go to : <http://mola-light.com/>

Hasselblad Heroines

This is a bit late for International Women's Day but I still thought it was important to share Hasselblad's feature on contemporary and influential women photographers "Hasselblad Heroines". This is the second year for this feature and I look forward to reading these stories, and about all the other women featured not only in March but through every month of the year.

HASSELBLAD HEROINES A CELEBRATION OF FEMALE PHOTOGRAPHERS

Hasselblad Heroines shines a light on talented female photographers from around the globe as they make their mark in the photographic industry. Through these spotlights, each Heroine shares their experiences in their career, challenges they've encountered in a typically male-dominated industry and inspiration in their art through short video interviews. <https://www.hasselblad.com/heroines/>

COVID-19 and My Two Cents.

While the outbreak of the COVID-19 virus is scary and a very real concern, where we need to be diligent in being safe and protecting ourselves and those we care for is with proper health practices. We also need to not panic and act irrationally, and purchase 12 months of toilet paper or hoard shopping carts full of meat or canned beans. Canadians have survived world wars, the depression, and other troubling times, not by trying to outdo those around us by depleting the shelves of our stores, but by pitching in, doing with less and caring for our neighbors and those in our community.

Remember, this too will pass, don't lose heart. If you are off work, or practicing social distancing, pick up a book start reading again, learn a new skill or how to play that musical instrument you purchased years ago and stuffed in a drawer or the corner of the room. Stay fit, go for walks or run, learn yoga online, or get those 6 pack abs that you always promised yourself you would do. Just don't try to do it all in one day. Consider spending some time in quiet meditation or prayer to quell those feelings of angst.

In time, once we start to return to a certain level of normality, we as a community will have a responsibility to support our local small businesses. Yes I am biased to Beau Photo but I am biased to my extended family I share 8 ½ hours a day with. But it goes further than that. For every coffee you buy from the coffee giants also go to a small local coffee shop and buy a coffee and maybe a snack from them. Look for local produce stores, fish markets, butcher shops and bakeries to support. Don't forget the clothing stores, bookshops, and record stores (yes they are still around). Look for Canadian musicians when you are making a music purchase in stores and online. I am sure you get the idea. And very importantly we need to support local and Canadian film and those in the film industry. For every blockbuster Hollywood production you go to see or rent, go see or rent a Canadian film. There are so many great Canadian films and documentaries out there. Once you discover these Canadian made gems, you may even make it part of your regular entertainment choice.

Yes times are tough and are due to get tougher, but we were made to survive, to overcome adversity, to care, to help, and lend a hand and share our talents when need be. Yes we all have talents, many we may have not discovered yet. We just need to take a deep breath (while staying 2 meters away from the person nearest to us), stay calm, and know we will get through this together.

RENTAL NEWS

JASON K.

Two weeks ago, a day before the stuff really hit the fan, I was in a local park where I was able to photograph a male Anna's Hummingbird trying to woo the females by singing, showing off his resplendent gorget and demonstrating his flying skills. I also found two Anna's Hummingbird nests nearby and a pair of Barred Owls, who are just about to start their family! Unfortunately, the next day the park closed indefinitely due to the COVID-19 outbreak.

In these uncertain times, it is normal to be anxious, and uncertain as to what the future holds. I am no different. However, I have tried to keep busy and pass the time by carrying my camera with me almost everywhere, which at present is pretty much only to get groceries or for short walks around my neighbourhood. This is something I haven't done for many years, and I have discovered some areas of my neighbourhood that I had forgotten or never knew existed! I have found it to be quite cathartic.

AT HOME PROJECTS

MUSTAFA

These days, we are unfortunately likely confined to our indoor spaces, quarantined to our homes, stocked up on supplies and VHS boxed sets of your favourite TV shows. You might find yourself craving photography, even if only for the action of taking photos more than seeing the results. If that is the case, you can always of course try out a few new forms of photography...

Macro Photography.

Much has been said about macro photography, as the default for home projects seems to be to take photos of things you might have around you. What better way to look at everyday things differently than to look at them from a new perspective? All you likely need, if you don't have a macro lens, is a few macro extension tubes and a closer perspective on things!

Documentary Photography

Find your inner photojournalist and start taking photos of your family and pets around the house as we slowly get used to the hermit lifestyle! Create fond memories for your future self to look back at as you remember the dire times your family went through together.

Artsy Self portraiture

Take your selfie game to the next level with the help of a tripod or a stable surface and the self timer feature on your camera. Be the next Cindy Sherman and create self reflective art as you find yourself not just posing yourself, but creating a scene out of the random junk you may have accumulated over the years.

Wildlife Photography

If you are blessed with a patio or balcony, you might notice the wildlife slowly encroaching into the city as their number one threat (humans) retreats back into their nests. Its time to take out that one telephoto lens that you never seem to use and shoot some birds!

Sports Photography

Wash your hands properly after you handle the controllers or chess pieces, as things heat up over several intense matches in your living room. Get in close with your camera as you watch the up and coming e-sport superstar slowly prime themselves to be next year's champion.

In any case, there's a lot more opportunities to burst that creative bubble with all the free time and space you might have acquired. Just remember to disinfect your cameras and gear every now and then, and stay safe!

FILM / ANALOGUE

Focus in Closer

Finding yourself bored already? Try some indoor photography! Take a CLOSE look at the knick-knacks around you, document your beloved possessions!

Don't have access to a macro lens? No problem (unless you're obsessed with edge to edge sharpness..) I looked around my place and decided to focus in closer using lenses I could find in my house, a magnifying glass, old lenses I pulled from a cheap telephoto, even a glass of water. Link to my blog post and see some of the items I used and photos I got from messing about with magnification in my apartment.

It pains me to point this out, but if you have no digital and don't want to "waste" film, use your cell phone!

Please see our blog post for more info, pictures or tools and results!

<https://www.beauphoto.com/alternative-macr...tography-options/>

Shooting with a TLR

We are very excited that the days are staying lighter longer and the sky is raining less, this means its TLR time! (nothing puts a kink in one's TLR photo taking like rain drops filling a viewfinder...)

I'm stoked to be using my favourite, the Rolleicord Vb and I can hardly wait to get out there and use the newest edition to my Rolleifamily, a Baby Rolleiflex 4x4 TLR.

If you feel like getting into some of that TLR action, we have quite a few TLRs in the store right now, everything from Rolleicords, Rolleiflexes, Mamiyas Ricohflexes to a Flexo!

Being quite quaint and rare these days, I'm sure you'll see a lot of questions and smiles coming your way as you carry one around, taking contemplative photos out on a beautiful, sunny day.

Cabinet of Curiosities

A Collection of Notable Objects.

An Exhibition of Analogue Images
New Date - TBA

Science World - Aurizon Atrium

Due to venue closures and the current physical distancing measures in place, we will be putting the exhibition online for now.

If you would still like to submit an image, please e-mail film@beauphoto.com to arrange it, and we can post it online. We are currently planning to go ahead with hanging the exhibition at Science World once we are able.

We will post on social media and our website when we know the details. Meanwhile enjoy the images online, and we hope you can see them in person soon.

Stay healthy, and be curious!

The Beau Photo Team

See the exhibition at -

<https://www.beauphoto.com/cabinet/>

Cabinets of Curiosities, also called Wunderkammer or wonder rooms, originated in the mid 16th century as collections of mysterious items of significance; oddities, relics, antiquities, archaeological or geological finds, anything that fascinated and inspired scientific or artistic exploration. They reflected the interests and thought processes of the people who collected and put objects on display. Cabinets of Curiosities were the precursors to modern museums; private collections became public and people could discover wondrous objects they had never before seen.

This exhibition aims to bring together a collection of curiosities. The image might represent the object or be the object. See what fascinates us, what moves us to create a collection of things, what images we've created that have themselves become precious objects.
