Digital Infrared - Southwest 2007

In recent times, I've written a few things about digital infrared (IR) processing and have gone over why I feel that mirrorless cameras are superior for IR conversion. That said, I revisited some images I took back in 2007 with my first converted camera, an old Canon EOS 20D digital SLR (DSLR). While I still feel mirrorless cameras are indeed superior for that, one can still get some great results with an IR converted DSLR. Here is a link to an image gallery with those images and I was honestly quite surprised and how well the old camera did... <https://www.beauphoto.com/portfolio-item/infrared-canon-20d-southwest-2007/>

So, if you have an old DSLR hanging around and lenses you don't know what to do with, and the gear is too old to be of much value selling second hand, you might want to consider having an older body converted to shooting IR. In addition, if your main camera is still a decent DSLR and you have no intentions of switching to mirrorless just yet, if you wanted to try your hand at digital IR, then you can look for an older, cheaper DSLR body to have converted. For a listing of the used DSLR gear we have at Beau Photo, see this link... <https://www.beauphoto.com/product-category/used-equipment/used-digital/used-dslr-cameras-and-lenses/> Often you can find something for only a few hundred dollars. Lastly, all the conversions I've personally had done was by the company LifePixel, just outside of Seattle, WA, and I was always very happy with their work... <https://www.lifepixel.com/>

Bigger Softer Softboxes

Responding to photographer’s demands, Profoto has expanded on their popular line of Profoto softboxes, with the introduction of the XL series including the 5ft Octa, 4x6 Light Bank and 1x6 Strip Box, all available in either silver or white. These new Profoto softboxes feature an all-in-one mount design, making them incredibly easy to set up with a quick fold/unfold solution. In addition, it provides adjustable softness and intensity of light through its removable and interchangeable diffuser. The recessed front evenly delivers a distribution of natural looking light, and as it is heat-resistant, it is compatible with the full range of Profoto 100mm flashes and LED lights.

Built for larger setups, the Profoto XL softboxes feature a reinforced construction to ensure stability and reliability on set. The upgraded velcro attachments securely hold diffusers and grids in place, while four integrated safety-wire attachment points provide added security when rigging. The classic Profoto clamp mount ensures a robust connection to your light, designed for demanding professional productions.

They Have Arrived!

After a slight delay, we have finally received our Nikon ZR body, Z 50mm f1.4 & Z 35mm f1.4 lenses! For a limited time, the ZR body and the two lenses can be rented at no cost courtesy of Nikon Canada for up to two days! Be sure to book in advance!

Just to re-cap, the Nikon ZR is basically a cinema oriented version of Nikon's excellent Z 6III mirrorless stills camera. It lacks a viewfinder or mechanical shutter but includes high end cinema level RAW codecs, like R3D NE & ProRes RAW and advanced audio processing. The 35mm f1.4 & 50mm f1.4 lenses are ideal for video, as they are silent, with linear manual focusing and are almost devoid of focus breathing. Get your reservations in now!

Disclaimer The rental is free, but you must still leave a security deposit of $4,100 at the time of pick up.

Profoto SnapBag + Accessories

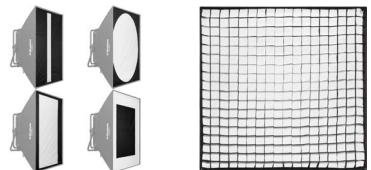

In last month's Beau Photo newsletter, I mentioned that we now have the new Profoto ProPanel 3x2 available for rent. Following close behind, we now have some light modifiers for the ProPanel that will give you more options for lighting. Profoto SnapBag M, a 4.5'x4.5' softbox for the ProPanel. The SnapBag

M Kit includes an inner and outer diffusion, but also comes with a Mask Kit for the front of the SnapBag. The Mask Kit has four masks: strip, rectangle, round and an edge mask. A 40° SnapGrid is also available separately.

Profoto Pro Panel 3x2: $350/Day or Weekend

Profoto SnapBag M: $65/Day or Weekend

Contax S2

The Contax S2 is one of those cameras that feels special every time you use it. It's a fully mechanical 35mm SLR with beautiful titanium construction, a smooth film advance, and access to excellent Carl Zeiss lenses that produce fantastic images. What makes it appealing is its simplicity. No auto focus or automatic modes, just pure manual shooting experience that encourages you to slow down and think about each frame. The spot meter can take some time to get used to and isn't ideal for fast paced shooting, and the camera has become fairly expensive because of its reputation and collectibility. Still, if you enjoy hands on photography and appreciate great craftsmanship, the Contax S2 is a rewarding camera that's as enjoyable to use as it is to look at.

Used Contax S2 w/50mm lens available at Beau for \$1700
